Fairbanks at The Kingsley is so named in a nod to the famous Cork ballad 'The Banks of My Own Lovely Lee', a song beloved by Corkonians which celebrates the beauty of the city and its river. Along with the K Lounge, the second casual dining space at The Kingsley is called The Springboard Bistro, referencing the historical significance of the site as the home of Cork's renowned public baths, the Lee Baths, which opened in 1934 and closed in 1986.
